Health care providers do a better job than most of their colleagues, around the world, to prevent and treat heart disease. Some hospitals do better than others at reducing admissions for heart attacks, the authors say. Some hospitals also have more heart attack survivors.

ANSWER

Nonetheless, improvements in processing the re-correlated star field require simple approximate representations of 10% and simpler images do not provide more accurate star centroided solutions in practice than centroided star field images (see Figure 3). This is because a simple representation is less sensitive to local noise.
