El "Informe de la Comisión de la Verdad" (2002) es el primer documento oficial de la historia reciente de Chile que reconoce la existencia de la "cultura del terror" y la "cultura del silencio". Este informe es el resultado de un proceso de investigación y de una serie de audiencias públicas que se llevaron a cabo entre 1991 y 1992. El informe reconoce que la "cultura del terror" fue una estrategia utilizada por el régimen militar para imponer el miedo y la obediencia en la población. La "cultura del silencio" fue una estrategia utilizada por la población para sobrevivir a la represión y evitar ser víctimas de la violencia. El informe también reconoce que la "cultura del silencio" fue una estrategia utilizada por el régimen militar para imponer el miedo y la obediencia en la población. El informe también reconoce que la "cultura del silencio" fue una estrategia utilizada por la población para sobrevivir a la represión y evitar ser víctimas de la violencia.

1. Chlorophyll a and Chlorophyll b were extracted from the leaves of Chlorella vulgaris and Chlorella pyrenoidosa using a mixture of 80% methanol and 20% water. The extracts were then separated by thin layer chromatography (TLC) using a solvent system of 10% ethyl acetate and 90% chloroform. The spots were visualized under UV light and the concentrations were determined using a spectrophotometer.
