Los resultados obtenidos en este estudio, al menos en lo que respecta a la percepción de la calidad de la atención, sugieren que la percepción de la calidad de la atención en los servicios de atención primaria es alta, lo que se refleja en los altos niveles de satisfacción de los usuarios. Sin embargo, se observó que la percepción de la calidad de la atención en los servicios de atención especializada es menor, lo que se refleja en los niveles más bajos de satisfacción de los usuarios. Esto puede deberse a una serie de factores, como la falta de información sobre los servicios de atención especializada, la falta de acceso a los servicios de atención especializada, o la falta de recursos humanos y materiales en los servicios de atención especializada. Por lo tanto, se recomienda que se realicen estudios adicionales para identificar los factores que influyen en la percepción de la calidad de la atención en los servicios de atención especializada y se tomen medidas para mejorarla.
