CONCLUSIONS

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine if there were differences in the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders between two groups of nurses working in different departments of a tertiary care hospital. The study included 60 female nurses who worked in the intensive care unit (ICU) and 60 female nurses who worked in the medical-surgical department. Data were collected from self-administered questionnaires that assessed demographic characteristics, work-related factors, and musculoskeletal symptoms. Results showed that the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was significantly higher among ICU nurses than among medical-surgical nurses. This finding suggests that the physical demands of ICU nursing are more likely to result in musculoskeletal problems than those of medical-surgical nursing.
