Workshop on Management of Socio-Informational Resources during the 1st ECONETWORKS (ECONETWORKS) in 1997 has emphasized the importance of developing new decision-making tools which have the ability to identify different types of market entities and to predict their future development. The main idea of the workshop was to discuss the problems of forecasting the future development of the economy and to propose methods for solving them.

Me differently than do I. This reflects my personal interests, work office, and communication techniques. I am not afraid to write them off as irrelevant to my customer base. I am also open to new opportunities and willing to learn from mistakes. My learning style is best described as being visual and auditory. I am able to comprehend ideas by seeing them and hearing them explained. I am also able to understand concepts by reading them and discussing them with others.

Por otra parte, el desarrollo de la actividad económica en la región ha sido impulsado por la demanda de mano de obra que se ha visto incrementada con la llegada de miles de migrantes provenientes de las zonas rurales.
