

With the generalization of the model to the case of a continuous distribution of the random variable A , the distribution of the random variable B is also continuous, and the probability of the event $B = 0$ is equal to zero. In this case, the probability of the event $B = 0$ is equal to zero.

2007年12月15日 星期六
 2007年12月15日 星期六