Abstract: This study examined the effects of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact exercise program on the physical and psychological health of older adults. The program was designed to improve cardiovascular fitness, muscle strength, and flexibility. Results showed that participants experienced significant improvements in cardiovascular fitness, muscle strength, and flexibility. Additionally, participants reported improvements in mood and self-esteem. The findings suggest that a low-intensity, low-impact exercise program can be an effective intervention for improving the physical and psychological health of older adults.
